

Did you know?

As well as telling the Australian story of wool in the two permanent galleries, the National Wool Museum has two temporary exhibition galleries that are used to deliver an exciting annual program of changing exhibitions.

Every year the Museum hosts large scale exhibitions brought in from some of Australia's leading cultural institutions on topics as diverse as dinosaurs, maritime discoveries, toys, dangerous animals and outer space.

These are supplemented by Geelong-focussed exhibitions produced in-house and telling stories that are unique to this region, and annual or biennial textile exhibitions.

In addition, the Museum offers a busy schedule of public programs and events, including activities for families every school holidays.

This is why an annual membership makes such good sense. For one low price you can visit the Museum as often as you like throughout the year and take full advantage of the continually changing program.
